The one thing needed in the home and in the school, at work and at play, is co-operation. It takes little effort and goes a great way toward a happy and secure life.

If cooperation could start in the home and grow like an epidemic via the children; the teachers, instructors, and advisers could be a greater help to those same students. Many children get off to a bad start with the wrong outlook on life. In many cases it is not the child's fault, but the parents', because of the poor example they set. If the children see this thing in full swing in their own home, and practice it in school and every day, they could be much happier. It is surprising how some children, who grow up in homes where there is little or no cooperation, go out into the world cooperating in every way possible. What this world needs is more people like that.

If people could only realize the trials and tribulations of the teacher, due to lack of cooperation, there would be no hesitancy on their part to cooperate to the fullest extent. If the instructor could have this, a student would get twice the value out of school that he now does. Without cooperation the teacher can do little to help the student, no matter how much he may try.

Not only is lack of cooperation a drawback in school and the home, but in politics. Without cooperation, the United States government would not be a democracy. The reason for so much conflict in the world today is chiefly this important factor.

So come on, folks, let's cooperate a little and brighten our pathway to success, security, and happiness.

Students of N. H. S., may I call to your attention the condition of our school-house? Please don't misunderstand me; I am not sponsoring a campaign to build a new structure. I am merely advocating a simple clean-up program.

Please, boys and girls, cast a glance around your home room, the main room, the corridors and the basements. Do you feel proud of yourselves? Seriously, if each and every one of us were to take a single ounce more of interest in the upkeep of our high school the improvement would be astonishing. Let us not stop with keeping the building clean but let us be neat and orderly about our own desks. It must be admitted that a stranger walking into N. H. S. would be poorly impressed with the students and it stands to reason that any building which is cluttered, dirty and untidy casts a reflection of its inhabitants.

My suggestion for improvement would be to make an official "housekeeping hour." Perhaps an appropriate time for this would be Friday afternoon; during this time everyone should clean desks, wash boards, etc. But remember, this time would be wasted if no consideration were given during the week.

STOP, LOOK, AND THINK! An immaculate school building will be for your own benefit.

CLASS HISTORY

Let us dip back into the past for a minute and try to recall when the class of '48 were Freshmen.

Class officers for our Freshman year were: President, Effie Fletcher; Vice President, George Gray; Secretary, Marilyn Davis; and Treasurer, Betty Parlee. Our candidate for Carnival Queen was Avis Weir. Sports enthusiasts were Marie Patchell and Jean Rich.

It doesn't seem possible, but we made the grade into our Sophomore year of N. H. S. We were old hands now and no one pushed us around. For officers we chose George Gray, Ivan Fletcher, Gloria Bryson, and Joyce Dyer. This year we chose Marie Patchell and George Gray as our candidates for Carnival King and Queen. Sophomore Speaking was held in February at the movie hall and speakers were: James Smith, first prize; Phyllis Ramsey, first prize, and Richard Williams, runner-up. Others were Rae Stuart, Joyce Dyer, and Marilyn Chase. Alternates were Marie Patchell and Marilyn Rich.

Who hit my thumb? Did you hear Betty Parlee cracked her ankle trying to dust the piano for this occasion? All this happened March twenty-first when we were Juniors. The event was the combined Junior Speaking and Prom. Speakers were: Marilyn Rich, first prize; James Smith, first prize; Joyce Dyer, runner-up. Others were George Gray, Paul Frazier, Gloria Bryson, and Phyllis Ramsey. Alternates were Richard Williams and Jean Rich. Candidates for the annual king and queen, this year, were Joyce Dyer and Paul Frazier.

Newport High School looked very good in the early days of autumn of our Senior year. At last our goal had been achieved. To lead our class, this, our final year, we had Paul Frazier as our president, George Gray his substitute; to keep our class records, Joyce Dyer; and to check our financial conditions, Verlie Hartley. This year our Senior Class was pleased to have as King and Queen of the Winter Carnival Sports, Joyce Dyer and James Smith.

Throughout the years our energetic sportsmen held their places and among them were George Gray, Ivan Fletcher, Paul Frazier, Coburn Finnemore, Richard Williams, Robert Gipson, and James Smith, who were out for such sports as football, basketball, and baseball.

Now we are taking the final step and we must not forget three members of the graduating class who have come up through the years together. Jean Rich, Ivan Fletcher and Betty Parlee started school in 1936 and now the first twelve years are finished.

Now our minds are back to the present and it is with a slightly wistful look at Newport High School that we turn our faces to the future and to whatever it may bring.

through St. Albans and Hartland we returned to the schoolhouse, where we were served pop and sandwiches.

In November the tryouts for Sophomore Speaking were held. Those chosen were Elaine Garrison, Pauline Lancaster, Frances DeBeck, Dale Carsley, Gordon Richardson and Westley Maynard. The alternates were Virene Booth and James Flagg.

Later we Freshmen girls had a chop suey supper in the Home Economics laboratory with our teacher, Miss Brewer. The food was delicious and we all had a grand time.

Our next and most exciting event was the Winter Carnival and election for king and queen candidates, who were Sterling Smith and Delina Paradis, with Wade Richardson as manager.

EIGHTH GRADE

On September 2, 1947 the Newport Eighth Grade moved to the High School building. There were thirty-four students enrolled at the beginning of the school year with Mrs. Fernald as instructor.

After a few days of school and hard work, we elected our class officers and they were as follows: President, Paul Ramsey; Vice President, Jane Wiseman; Secretary, Richard Brown; Treasurer, Richard Reed; and Student Council, Paul Ramsey. Later, Betty Look was appointed our Eighth Grade Editor for the "Booster."

Soon the basketball season dribbled around and the line-up for Boys' Basketball was entirely from the Eighth Grade, while that of Girls' Basketball included four Eighth Graders.

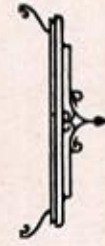

On Thursday afternoon, December 18th, we had a Christmas social, which we all enjoyed. The Christmas Concert directed by Mrs. Monaghan was held at the High Street Union Church that evening with the Eighth Grade singing two numbers.

It was voted to have a toboggan party on Tip Top and the President, Paul Ramsey, appointed those to bring the toboggans and build the fire. It was held Saturday, February 7, and everyone had a wonderful time.

We have had an eventful year of school, and have found it to be quite a change in some ways from years spent in the Grade School Building. As our days in the Eighth Grade draw to a close, we look forward to becoming Freshmen and a part of the regular High School in the fall.

THE UNPRAISED HEROES, "MOM AND DAD"

The trouble with most of us is that we never realize how much anything means to us until we no longer have it, whether it is a toy, a pleasant home, or the love and care of our parents.

Not many of us younger people ever stop to think of the trouble and sacrifice that our parents have endured, without a complaint, to try to bring us up right. We do not stop to realize that a few kind words or a kind thought once in a while might make them feel that their job is not done in vain.

After all, they deserve it. They would give us their last cent; they would give up anything to give us something that means a lot to us, so why not show our gratitude in part by giving up a little now and then to make them happy?

For instance, our mother will stand by us when we need her help. Our father will fight for us, right or wrong, when we are in trouble. They will care for us when we are ill, encourage us when we are discouraged, show us where we are wrong, praise us when we are right. These are only a few of the things that parents are doing every day; sacrificing to help us without our realizing it, or if we realize it, without giving it a second thought.

Have you ever asked mother or dad for the car some evening and taken it to a game or dance, the next day finding out that they had planned to use it themselves? Or have you asked them for some money to go somewhere special? They dig down into the remote corners of their pockets and dig out some change or a bill and give it to you whether they can afford it or not.

If you haven't witnessed some similar experiences, there is something wrong somewhere, because every mother and father is trying to do the best for you, no matter how strict you think they are.

Think it over. Are you doing justice to your mother and father? Could you do a little more to show them your appreciation? You hear a lot about all the praised war heroes, lifesaving heroes and other, but let us start praising the unpraised heroes, Mom and Dad.

Richard Williams '48

A STUDENT'S EXAMPLE

"There," said Student Gray, with a shake of her head, "I cleaned out my books and my desk's been washed and cleaned, but I do wish the others would fix up theirs the same. It's a shame, I call it, just plain and flat, that we have to stay in schools with rooms like that. I'll wait no longer. I'll start today and fix up my part of it anyway."

Now this student is one of those girls who, when they start a thing, just "rush it through," and a day or so after, as Seavey came up to Student Gray's desk, saw how neat and clean it was, walked away and said, "By George, I'll let Gray see that I can be as neat as she."

Now Student Wade sat just behind, saw Seavey and Gray cleaning desks, and so she fixed up hers to be "in the game." Now every Junior did the same, and soon every student in N. H. S. was trying his best to "Outbeat Gray."

And now when Student Council meets, they are proud of their school which can't be beat.

The moral of this tale applies to school and other things. Reforms, like snowballs, will keep on growing, if somebody only starts the ball rolling.

(Revision of Farmer Brown's Example.)

MORTIMER'S FIRST GIRL

Another spring had come! The little town of Centerville had taken on a gay and lively atmosphere. Bluebirds had winged their way back home from their long winter's stay in the south. The trees were newly clad in a soft foliage of green. The air was fresh and faintly perfumed with a light fragrance from the early budding flowers.

Highland Avenue, the lane on which Susie Drake resides, has been touched by the magic hand of Mother Nature as she brings forth a new spring. Perhaps this is why Mortimer Jameson has turned his mind to thoughts of love. He has suddenly awakened to the fact that Susie Drake is an extremely attractive young girl who is in the same class with him at Centerville High. Mortimer has been very fortunate thus far in the first "romance" of his young life. He had just succeeded in dating Susie for the forthcoming "N" Club dance which was to be held at the high school gym the following week. He had been rather bashful in asking Susie, but now the ordeal was over and she had accepted.

In Mortimer's estimation, the week passed by at an unbelievable speed. It was Friday night, a most beautiful evening in spring, with the sweet chirping of crickets and soft evening breezes floating through the treetops.

At eight Mortimer arrived at the Drake residence. He paused outside the gate, adjusted his tie, and gathered up the nerve to continue on his way to the front door. He pressed very lightly on the doorbell, but the sound of the buzzing made him jump. Mrs. Drake opened the door and greeted him in her ever friendly manner. Somehow or other, Mortimer managed to smile and utter a faint "Hello." Descending the stairway was Susie, attired in a breathtaking pink evening gown. Mortimer thought that she was the most charming girl that he had even seen.

Susie had always known that Mortimer Jameson was shy, but not this shy. He could scarcely say a word while they were walking, (yes, walking, for Mortimer had no car) to the gym.

There was everything to make a perfect evening, the wonderful air of spring and a dreamy orchestra, but somehow, to Susie Drake, the evening was far from perfect. The hours passed slowly while Susie danced with Mortimer, for he was continually stepping on her feet.

As the gym clock struck eleven, Mortimer said he must go, for his mother would be expecting him. Although Susie knew that the dance would continue until twelve, she made no protest.

They were soon on the Main Street, with Mortimer trying earnestly to keep up a rather feeble conversation. It seemed like hours to Susie before they would ever reach Highland Avenue. Finally the Drake residence came into view. They walked noiselessly into the garden, where the pale spring moon was casting infinite shadows on the sweet smelling flowers and shrubs.

They sat on the garden bench for a few minutes, with Susie knowing that she must find the answer to Mortimer's strange behavior.

Mortimer rose shortly to leave, telling Susie that he had had a wonderful evening.

Then the inevitable happened when Susie nearly shouted, "Mortimer Jameson, what on earth is causing such a strange behavior in you?"

"Strange behavior in me?" questioned Mortimer. "In me?" he repeated. "Why, Susie Drake, how can you be so stupid? Why, why, everyone knows that this is Leap Year!"

"Ohhhhh," was all that the wistful Susie could murmur.

And the pale yellow moon of spring winked her eye as she smiled down upon them.

THE BROOK AND THE WAVE

The brooklet came from the mountain,
As sang the bard of old,
Running with feet of silver
Over the sands of gold.

Far away in the briny ocean
There rolled a turbulent wave,
Now singing along the sea-beach,
Now howling along the cave.

And the brooklet has found the billow,
Though they flowed so far apart,
And has filled with its freshness and sweetness
That turbulent, bitter heart.

A SUCCESSFUL HUNT

It was a cold, frosty morning after a severe snow storm, that a hunter, isolated in his little log cabin one hundred miles from the nearest settlement, found himself without ample clothing to keep himself warm enough to endure the intense cold. Shivering with the cold, he put his last stick of wood on the fire, grabbed up his rifle and started into the forest, muttering to himself, "If only I had a fur overcoat." With this thought in mind he wandered at random in search of food.

It so happened that on the same morning a bear, famished with hunger, came from his den, ready to jump on the first object that showed any signs of life. Because of the long snowstorm, he had not had anything to eat for three days and nights. Snarling and growling, he set forth towards the hunter's cabin, which was about ten miles distant. The only thought in his mind was getting a warm breakfast.

On the bank of a small stream, between two hills about midway between the bear's den and the hunter's cabin, the hunter and the bear saw each other. At the first sight of the man, the bear rushed with all his speed to shorten the distance between them. The hunter, while thinking of what a chance he had to shoot the bear, was knocked down by him and inside of two seconds there was no hunter. Thus each received what he wished for: the bear got his breakfast and the hunter his fur overcoat.

JOKES

Mr. Chaplin: "I hope I didn't see you looking at Herbert's paper."

Richard Parlee: "I hope you didn't, too."

Miss Brewer: "Mickey, what is a doughnut?"

Mickey: "A hole surrounded by bad cooking."

Thelma P. and Mickey P. were playing cards.

Mickey P.: "Hey! You're cheating!"

Thelma P.: "I'm not! I had that ace before we started."

Mr. Grauer: "What was going on in 1776?"

Blaine L.: "The War of 1812."

Miss Ward: "If Shakespeare were living today would he be very famous?"

Clem M.: "Yes, I think he would, because he would be 376 years old."

Miss Ward: "What is a synonym?"

Ronald P.: "Something you put in a spice cake."

Miss Ward: "You can't sleep in class!"

Blaine L.: "If you didn't talk so loud I could."

Roger C.: "Don't I deserve something besides a zero in spelling?"

Mrs. Fernald: "Yes, but they don't let us give anything lower."

Mrs. Fernald: "Why is it that lightning never strikes twice in the same place?"

Norman F.: "Because when it strikes once, the same place isn't there any more."

Ronald P.: "Ivan, you're afraid to fight with me."

Ivan F.: "No, but if I fight, my mom will find out and spank me."

Donald P.: "How'll she find out?"

Ivan F.: "She'll see the doctor going into your place."

On a rather warm day an old lady went up in an airplane for the first time. When the plane had been in the air some time, she pointed to the propeller. "All right, young man," she shouted to the pilot, "you can turn the fan off now. I feel much cooler."

Mrs. Gilson (in Latin class): "Doris, what have you there?"

Doris: "A poem."

Mrs. Gilson: "Read it."

Doris: "Latin is a dead language as far as I can see. It killed the ancient Romans, and now it's killing me."

Mr. Grauer: "Carrie, is that desk too high for you?"

Carrie S.: "No, but the seat is too low."

Mrs. Anxious (poking the street car conductor with her umbrella): "Is that the First National Bank?"

Conductor: "No, mum, them's my ribs."

Lady of the house: "And what can I do for you?"

Tramp: "If you don't mind, I'd like a coat sewed on this button."

Mrs. Gilson: "Please correct this sentence: 'Girls is naturally better looking than the boys.'"

Dale C.: "Girls is artificially better looking than boys."

Wilbur M.: "Hey, Twirp! Aren't you going to the game tonight?"

Herbert T.: "Nope, I've got to stay home and help Dad with my school

Jimmy, from down South, was spending a rather cold spring away up North and on first seeing a pussy willow remarked: "Boy, isn't nature wonderful? When it's cold up here the buds wear fur coats."

Miss Brewer: "What's etiquette, Jean?"

Jean R.: "Oh, that's the noise you mustn't make swallowing soup with company in the house."

When the final fourth quarter is finished,
And the last of the touchdowns is scored,
And the cleats are doffed for the season,
And the suits with the mothballs are stored,

And Alumni cease making suggestions;
Well, we can relax a bit then
And sit by the fire and remember
The games and the fun and the men.

There was George, who led us in victory;
There was Pete, keen, shrewd, and tough;
There was Blaine with smiling good nature,
And Jean with just the right stuff.

It brings me a thrill for all winter
When I think not of victories, but men Whose hopes and whose joys I have shared in
So let's call the roll once again.

And with it my heartiest good wishes
To Mahlon and to Dick and to Paul,
To Bob, Wilbur, and Herb.
I'm proud to have lived with them all.

And to Ivan, Ronald and Gordon,
The managers, Willis and Neal,
A toast to those who must leave us
And the others who stay with us still.

N. H. S. WINTER CARNIVAL HIGHLIGHTS

The annual Winter Carnival of Newport High School was held Saturday, January 31, 1948, with the neighboring school of Hartland competing.

Sports events in the morning were held on Tip Top at nine o'clock, and the afternoon events took place on Witham's Field at two o'clock. From five to six o'clock a supper was held in the Grange Hall under the direction of Miss Brewer, the Home Economics teacher.

The impressive ceremony of the coronation of the King and Queen that evening in the Armory proved thrilling for all who attended. The king and queen had been previously elected by the student body, but the victors had not been announced.

The ceremony began with the procession of the king and queen candidates, the guards of honor, and six children marching into the hall, led by their marshal, Phyllis Bachelder. After marching through an archway of skis formed by the guards of honor, the king and queen were then crowned by Mr. Stuart C. Chaplin, the queen being Joyce Dyer and the king, James Smith. Their royal majesties then took their rightful positions on the throne and read the names of the people who had earned awards. The high point school of the day, which was Hartland Academy, took the cup. An individual trophy was presented to Inez Sewell of Newport, high point girl of the day, and to Maynard Rowe of Hartland as high point boy.

Following the coronation ceremony a dance was held, thus ending the annual Newport High School Carnival of 1948, with a wonderful time having been had by all.

Early in the year the Junior and Senior agriculture boys went to Searsport to visit a fertilizer factory.

On the thirtieth of January a delegation of the F. F. A. boys visited the trade show held in Lewiston Armory and remained there all day. Some of the latest agriculture equipment, including tractors, sprayers and planters, was on display. In the afternoon a colored movie on mow drying proved very interesting. Following the movie a lecture on "Selections for Breeding" was given by a professor from Amherst College.

The boys also have a basketball team this year, made up of Future Farmers, under the coaching of Mr. Kennedy. They have played several games very creditably.

The Agriculture boys have just moved into their new classroom and have built a lumber rack for the shop. The lumber rack is very nearly filled as we had some lumber sawed and piled it up to dry. The new electric welder arrived and we are having quite a time learning to weld.

Although we lost to Corinna the girls really played hard, with Jean as high scorer. Thelma did a wonderful job even though the fouls piled up on her.

The last game of the year with Hartland was spoken of as the best of the season. "Bev's" guarding showed up, although she did get fouled out. "Mickey" came through as high scorer with twenty points.

The girls elected Jean Boylon for captain, Jean Rich for manager, and Eldora Wade her assistant. Our coach,

"CAMPUS QUARANTINE"

In the Newport Town Hall on January 21, 1948, the Senior class presented its play, "Campus Quarantine," a three-act comedy. Despite "wintry" weather, a large and enthusiastic audience heartily received the antics resulting from a quarantined sorority house.

Not long ago Southern California was rocked by a devastating earthquake . . . an earthquake of laughter, when an amusing incident happened in one of the well-known sorority houses of a famous university. It was Saturday evening; a number of the girls had already left the house with their escorts for the evening, but a few remained. One of the girls was feeling ill. A doctor was called in to examine her and quarantined the house because she had chickenpox! Among those present were several young men who were working their way through college by waiting on tables for the young ladies.

Taking this true incident as a basis for "The Campus Quarantine," Robert Ray, the author, has allowed his imagination to carry the characters through all manner of complications and laughable situations. Those inside the house try to get out, while those outside try to get in!

Edythe Rhodes wishes to elope with Finlay Carruthes and is prevented because of the quarantine. Mrs. Smith, the house mother, discharges the waiters, Ronald Steele and Gordon Dunn, but is forced to put up with them for two weeks more. Deborah Mercer has been writing to Howard Ross, a popular athlete from a rival college, and has sent him a picture of her beautiful roommate, Edythe, telling him that it is herself. The object of her adoration arrives on the campus and wants to meet her personally. She is frantic, fearing that he will see her as she is—a plain but sweet person. Gloria Smith, a niece of the house mother, is in love with one of the waiters, Gordon Dunn, but Mrs. Smith has forbidden Gloria to speak to either of the waiters. Ronald is hopelessly in love with Beryl Shepherd, who has the chickenpox and is responsible for the quarantine. Gordon has discovered that Mrs. Smith and Dr. Atwell secretly care for one another, and uses this information to his best interests.

And so it goes! Everything is hopelessly mixed up, only to be straightened out at length—with a toast to "The Campus Quarantine."

The school divided into two teams. The upper classmen, headed by Joyce Dyer as captain, were against the Freshmen and Eighth Grade, led by Marilyn Chase, the upper classes being the winner. However, a Freshman, Sterling Smith, was high salesman.

We took in three hundred and fifty-five dollars and ninety-five cents, of which one hundred and four dollars and fifty-four cents went to the school.

Newport High School wants to thank everyone who bought magazines. And don't forget, we'll be back to see you again next year!

FRESHMEN INITIATION AND RECEPTION

The Freshmen really had a wonderful time this year when the Sophomores gave them a "going over," although very few of them admitted it. The day began by the girls coming to school in their "long underwear," with boys' pants rolled above their knees. The hair was not combed and had a green ribbon tied around it. They had a pipe in their mouths and a tobacco can for carrying pencils. Mismatched shoes and stockings and a gunnysack for carrying books completed the ensemble.

The boys were cute that day when they arrived dressed as girls complete with nail polish and pocketbooks for carrying pencils. Like the girls, the boys wore green ribbons, mismatched shoes and stockings, and a gunnysack for books.

Each boy and girl had a sign on his back saying "Green Freshman."

The night of the reception the Seniors made a speech about us, one by one, as we stood on the stage in the town Hall. After the program there was a dance, for which Mr. Barrett kindly let us use his records.

After the initiation and reception we were really "Freshmen."

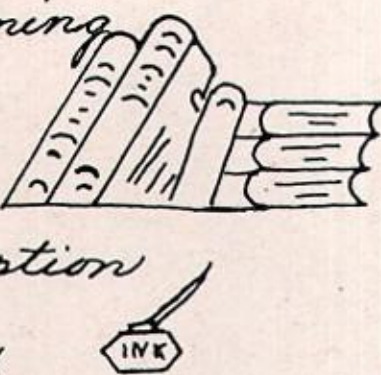

THE BOOSTER

There have been two issues of our school newspaper, the Booster, this year, one during the month of October and the other in January. Two more are planned.

The Echo, a national high school paper, was sold, but this proved unsuccessful, so the sales were discontinued.
